Class Discussion Questions and Essay Prompts:

“A year now seems longer than I thought it would be,” Kelly confided a couple of weeks ago. It wasn’t quite a year — 340 days to be precise, based on the Russian launch and landing schedule. But still record-smashing for NASA.

- Would you leave your family & friends for an entire year (or more) on behalf of space exploration? Why or why not?

“Those of us who dream of sending astronauts to deep space thank Scott Kelly for his sacrifice,” said Jim Green, director of planetary science for NASA, “and are thrilled to welcome him home.”

- We recognize military personnel and their families as personally sacrificing for our country. Have you ever thought of astronauts in that same category? Why or why not?
- Do you believe that we'll be sending astronauts to Mars and other planets? Why or why not?

Essay

“A really smart person said to me one time, ‘Teamwork makes the dream work in spaceflight,’ and spaceflight is the biggest team sport there is,” Kelly said Monday. He acknowledged each of the 13 U.S., Russian, European and Japanese space fliers with whom he and Kornienko lived during the past year.

“It’s incredibly important that we all work together to make what is seemingly impossible, possible.”

- Do you agree that, “Teamwork makes the dream work in spaceflight?” Why or why not?
- Is it important for many countries to work together on space missions? Why or why not?
- Why does America feel behind Russia in terms of space exploration?
- What other areas does teamwork help in creating successful situations?
- Describe an experience where you were a team player? Did everyone do their fair share? Why or why not?
