

Scavenger Hunt

Sunday's News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, February 5, 2017 print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. The Trump administration moved late Saturday to appeal a U.S. District Court ruling that blocked the president's immigration order, setting the stage for a legal showdown over his authority to tighten the nation's borders in the name of protecting what? (MAIN)
2. Each weekday morning, thousands of Eastside commuters have to decide what's more important, time or money. They can suffer in the crowded general traffic lanes of Interstate 405. Or they can choose the quicker left lane and pay tolls that average $_____ — but reach the $_____ maximum for at least a few minutes most weekdays. (MAIN)
3. Conservative criticism of Pope Francis intensified Saturday after his intervention in the Knights of Malta order, with posters appearing around Rome citing his actions against conservative Roman Catholics and asking what? (MAIN)
4. The Knights are a unique organization. What is their history? (MAIN)
5. Iran held a military exercise and tested rockets Saturday, a day after the United States imposed new sanctions on the nation in response to a ballistic missile test last weekend. Iran's Revolutionary Guard said the military exercise was a response to what? (MAIN)
6. China reacted with strong displeasure Saturday to a promise by Defense Secretary Jim Mattis that the United States would do what? (MAIN)
7. The University of Washington wants to turn the neighborhood into an incubator for tech startups. There are questions about whether the proposed upzone would make housing more or less affordable, help or hurt small businesses, clean up the neighborhood or ruin its quirky character. Where do the proponents stand? (NW SUNDAY)
8. From a distance, Washington's education funding system appears to rest on one major pillar: All 295 districts get a baseline allocation of money from the state to pay for their teachers and other school employees. Seems simple. But upon closer examination, the system reveals a myriad special cases and quirky formulas — such that it resembles a patchwork of Jerry-rigged fixes more than a uniform system. For instance, Olympia sets a basic schedule for teacher salaries. But 12 districts don't have to play by those rules, and receive higher starting-pay allocations from Olympia than the other 283. What district sits at the top and has received 5 percent more state pay for its beginning teachers than anywhere else since the late 1970s? (NW SUNDAY)
9. A standout safety for the Seahawks from 1981 to 1987, who was voted into the Hall of Fame on Saturday, in the process becoming the fourth player who spent his entire career in Seattle to make it in? Who is this player? (SPORTS)
10. What two NFL football teams are playing in Superbowl 51? (SPORTS)
