News Break Scavenger Hunt

Sunday’s News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, March 21, 2021 print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. Now, this timber sale named Smuggler (sales are often whimsically named by state foresters) also is swinging open a door to a broader conversation in Washington, home to the second-largest lumber producer in the nation, to rethink the value of trees on state lands not as logs, but as trees to help address what? (MAIN)

2. After nearly 100 years in business, selling spectacular, vividly decorated cakes for weddings and office parties, what beloved bakery announced Saturday it was closed for good? (MAIN)

3. TODAY IN HISTORY: Persia officially changed its name to Iran. What year did this take place? (MAIN)

4. ISTANBUL — President Recep Tayyip Erdogan issued a surprise decree early Saturday withdrawing Turkey from a landmark European treaty that women’s rights groups said had played a critical role in protecting Turkish women from what? (MAIN)

5. __________ is infested with more exotic and invasive species than any other state and perhaps, some say, than anywhere else in the world. Though a few nonnatives have been running amok for centuries. (MAIN)

6. Based on research published in November, the nonprofit Citizens of Ebey’s Reserve is threatening to sue the Navy, as well as NOAA Fisheries and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, if the federal agencies don’t reconsider what? (NW)

7. “Hate is a ______” former Washington Gov. Gary Locke, right, proclaimed at a rally condemning violence against Asian Americans in Seattle’s Chinatown International District on March 13. (NW)

8. Women have dropped out of the U.S. workforce at a faster pace in states where most students are learning from home, risking a reversal of decades of what? (JOBS)

9. Nutrition recommendations have historically been very Eurocentric — aka “_____________” — and there is a very gradual shift away from that trend occurring. Cultural diversity is a good thing, in life and in food. (THE MIX)

10. Last March, Americans were told to close schools and avoid restaurants and travel. As days with nowhere to go stretched into weeks and months — and now a year — our attention increasingly turned to our homes. Families used every inch of space, carving out places to work and study. We cooked three meals a day, did armloads of laundry and finally had the time to address home to-do lists. What two things became main priorities for families? (AT HOME IN THE NW)
