News Break Scavenger Hunt

Sunday’s News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, April 18, 2021 print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. TODAY IN HISTORY: Paul revere began his famous ride from Charlestown to Lexington, Massachusetts, warning colonists that British regular troops were approaching. What year did this take place? (MAIN)

2. Two U.S. lawmakers are vying to disrupt what they say is the largest commercial slaughter of land-based wildlife in the world, with a bill to ban kangaroo trade in the United States. A coalition of animal rights groups behind the bill is running a campaign called “kangaroos are not ________” — directed at companies including Nike and Adidas, which use kangaroo leather for soccer cleats. Australia exports about $60 million worth of kangaroo products each year to the United States, according to industry figures, the second-largest international market after the European Union. (MAIN)

3. Former Secretary of State Mike Pompeo broke federal ethics rules when he and his wife asked staffers to do what? Give a few examples. The internal watchdog report, released Friday, concluded the Pompeo’s made more than 100 requests that “appeared to be personal in nature” and violated regulations. (MAIN)

4. Zoom meeting participants rose from 10 million daily in December 2019 to an average of ______ million in April 2020, according to company reports. (MAIN)

5. When vegetable farmer Shay Myers has needed to weed 30 acres of organic onions, he’s typically hired a crew of around 30 people for a day of work that can be tedious, including sometimes using pocket knives to carve away weeds around the onions. This season, he hopes to use ______ instead? (BUSINESS)

6. More than a year after the pandemic abruptly forced tens of millions of people to start working from home, disrupting family lives and derailing careers, employers are now getting ready to bring workers back to offices. But for some people, the prospect of returning to their desks is provoking ______ feelings? (BUSINESS)

7. As remote work evolves from a stopgap measure during the pandemic into an ongoing way of life, a new job is emerging in the corporate ranks. What is it? (JOBS)

8. Rena Priest, the first Indigenous poet laureate of the state (she is a member of the Lhaq’temish, or Lummi, Nation), has given herself two goals. What are they? (THE MIX)

9. Sen. ____________________ is outspoken, self-assured and not afraid to say no. These may seem like traits expected of a politician. But Hirono, the first Asian American woman elected to the U.S. Senate and the only immigrant serving there, began her career as a soft-spoken public servant. (THE MIX)
10. Last year, we realized how many things we could do at home if needed. Bake, cook, teach, work — and what? Sales of exercise equipment, such as balls and indoor exercise bikes, have surged during the pandemic, according to the NPD Group, and nearly half of gym members don't plan to return to stand-alone fitness centers. (AT HOME IN THE NW)