

News Break Scavenger Hunt

Sunday's News Break challenges you to hunt through the Sunday, February 1, 2026, print replica of The Seattle Times to find answers to the following questions.

1. Should federal lawmakers have term limits? A state lawmaker wants Idaho to join growing momentum among states calling for the change in _____ . (MAIN)
 2. Utah Gov. Spencer Cox signed a bill Saturday that expands the state Supreme Court from five justices to _____ as frustration has mounted among Republican lawmakers over a string of defeats before the tribunal. (MAIN)
 3. Alison Luchs, 77, who has worked at the National Gallery of Art for 47 years, makes online videos explaining art using _____ because she wanted to raise interest in the museum's art. The videos have become a hit on social media. (MAIN)
 4. Many Native Americans are carrying tribal documents proving their U.S. citizenship. Why? (MAIN)
-
-

5. The ramped-up presence of federal immigration agents in the Twin Cities — and the fear it's created — has, for nearly a month now, disrupted the normal routines of a school day for thousands of students across Minnesota. What is happening that's causing fear for students? (MAIN)
-
-
-

6. Imagine a world with no hunting, no fishing, no livestock. Animal rights advocates are pushing to make it a reality in Oregon. Initiative _____ would remove many exemptions from current Oregon animal cruelty laws to protect more animals from abuse, neglect and killing. Exemptions would remain for self-defense and veterinary practices, but otherwise the measure would criminalize any activity that injures or kills animals. (MAIN)
 7. The new senior health clinic on Beacon Hill offers a rather unusual model of health care for aging adults: a range of medical and social services under one roof, with a goal of what? (NW)
-
-
-

8. Explosion of data centers has caused energy needs to grow exponentially, along with _____ use to keep things cool. (BUSINESS)
 9. At the Super Bowl next week, it's Zero Sugar that will star in the beverage company's Pepsi commercial, not the original formula. PepsiCo is running a 30-second spot, which can run more than $8 million, to hype the no-calorie drink. Across the soda aisle, Diet is out and Zero Sugar is in. Both Diet and Zero Sugar are calorie free, artificially sweetened imitations of their sugary brethren. Yet, the latter's branding resonates more with younger, wellness-minded consumers. Why? (BUSINESS)
-
-

10. As artificial intelligence threatens to upend job markets in countries around the world, Nvidia co-founder and CEO Jensen Huang brushed off longer-term concerns and made the case that skilled vocational workers are seeing increasing demand now. Plumbers, electricians and construction workers are going to be able to command "six-figure salaries," thanks to what? (JOBS)
-
-
-